Report from Mecum Glendale Auction

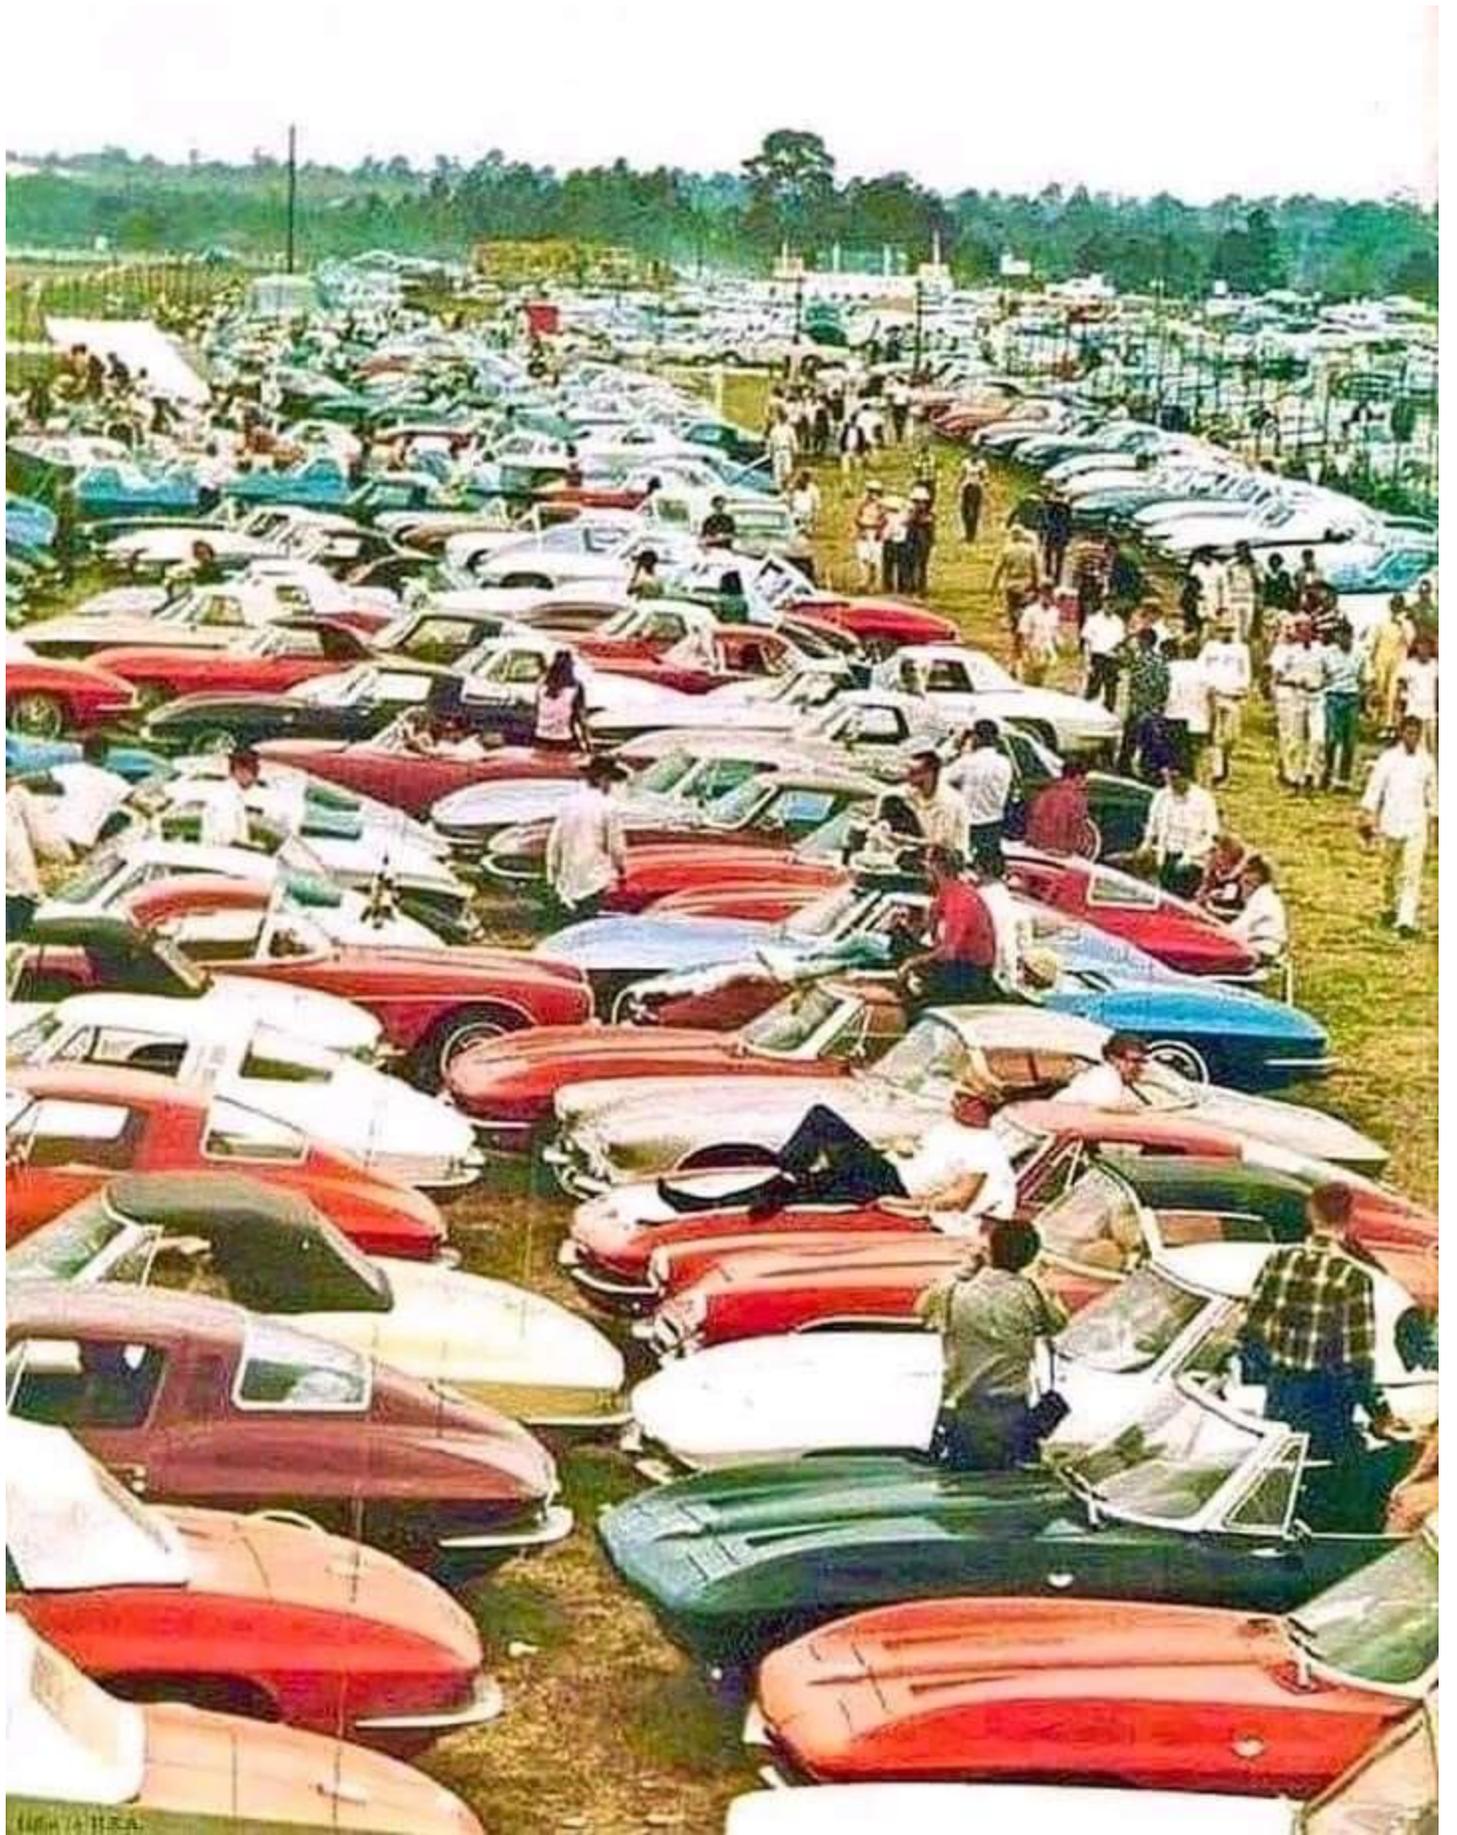

I had the opportunity to attend the Mecum Glendale Auction on Friday, March 7, 2024. It is not nearly as crowded as the Barrett Jackson Auction which takes place in late January in Scottsdale. Barrett Jackson has an almost circus like atmosphere. Mecum is a basic straightforward vehicle auction.

There was no shortage of Corvettes of all generations for sale at Mecum. I had the opportunity to see approximately 23 Corvettes go across the auction block serially starting with a 1953 and ending with a 2024.

After the cars crossed the auction block, they were parked in the center of the venue (the Phoenix Cardinals football stadium). There appears below a picture I took of the assemblage of those Corvettes.

For some contrast, I have reproduced below a picture of a Corvette convention from the mid-60's.

Finally, on a whimsical note, please see the picture below of a subcompact Corvette.
